3 Knowing And Seeing - Dhamma Talk Proper

3.1 Introduction And Pre-Pūjā By Bro. Teh

Bro. Teh: Good Evening and welcome Bro. Teoh and friends and also good evening brothers and sisters in the Dhamma. The title of tonight's dhamma talk is "Knowing and Seeing". The word meditation has various meanings and when we look at those words 'knowing' and 'seeing' from a certain conceptual point of view you may find that when you know something you don't really see or when you see something you don't really know. Here we are concern with meditation practice and in meditation practice there are so many different methods, but our concern here is the meditation practice that would lead us to enlightenment, that is our objective and with your Dhamma knowledge I believe you will agree that this meditation practice far surpasses any other method and objectives of meditation practices. Regarding this 'knowing' and 'seeing' - when we meditate we may see things, but do we know? And if we know do we see? I think I'll leave this to Brother Teoh to explain especially regarding this insight meditation. Okay, and as usual, it is good for us to take refuge in Triple Gem and observe the five precepts via a pre-pūjā before we start.

Salutation to Lord Buddha:-

Namo tassa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhasa (3X) (Homage to thee the blessed one, the worthy one and the fully enlightened one.)

Taking of the three refuges:-

Buddham saranam gacchāmi, Dhammam saranam gacchāmi, Sangham saranam gacchāmi

Dutiyampi Buddham saranam gacchāmi, Dhammam saranam gacchāmi, Sangham saranam gacchāmi

Tatiyampi Buddham saranam gacchāmi, Dhammam saranam gacchāmi, Sangham saranam gacchāmi

Taking of the 5 precepts:-

Pānātipātā veramani sikkhāpadam samādiyāmi; Adinnādānā veramani sikkhāpadam samādiyāmi; Kāmesu micchācārā veramani sikkhāpadam samādiyāmi; Musāvādā veramani sikkhāpadam samādiyāmi; Surā-meraya-majja-pamā datthānā veramani sikkhāpadam samādiyāmi.

Sādhu! Sādhu! (Rejoicing)

3.2 'Knowing And Seeing' – Sabbāsava Sutta

Bro. Teoh: Okay, a very good evening to all, brothers and sisters in the Dhamma. It has been quite a while since the last talk; I think it was one month plus ago. So tonight we have the condition to get together again. Tonight's topic is more unique. I was given this topic by Brother Gan; the title is "Knowing and Seeing". So I told him this is a good topic, and then I ask him why you ask for this topic. If you don't tell me why, I will explain the way I understand. Then it may be totally different from whatever idea that you may have. But luckily he sent me an e-book, compiled by a very renowned meditation master who conducted a retreat in Taiwan. And because of their retreat, they wrote and compiled this e-book. I read the introduction then I came to understand that they had based it on a sutta that the Buddha had spoken before - the 'Sabbāsava sutta'. Have you all heard of this sutta? Anybody hasn't heard of this sutta? Oh, so many of you haven't heard of this sutta? The rest of you heard before? May be I write it down, easier.

The Buddha spoke this Sabbāsava Sutta; what is āsava? Yes, 'defilements', the various types of defilements. There are a few Pali words used to describe defilements. The other Pali word you often heard off is anusaya - this word you heard before, isn't it? What is this anusaya? Ah, 'latent tendencies'. These are latent tendencies that lay dormant within the mind. You tend to have those tendencies unless you are already awaken otherwise these latent tendencies are always there. But they don't arise because there is no condition for them to arise, - like nobody disturbs you or there is no condition for you to react or to activate it. There are many teachers who use different terms to describe them. like Eckhart Tolle, he used the word 'pain body', - remember? Actually the meaning is the same. 'Pain bodies' are emotional negativities, when you touch it there is pain, there is suffering, there is reaction, understand or not? But he says sometimes the pain body is dormant. Dormant means you don't feel the pain as yet because conditions are very conducive, just like when things go your way and your life is normal with no bad news and nothing to disturb you. Then you are like okay. You may be having a good life, happy life, peaceful life, but then whenever there is condition for it to trigger off, like when there are some bad happenings or bad news or whatever that triggers off. Then these things affect you, understanding or not? The Buddha called this the first noble truth When you confront them without understanding, without wisdom, it will lead to suffering. The 1st noble truth of dukkha has 8 conditions that can cause suffering when living beings confront them without wisdom or understanding. So this is one type of āsava or Latent tendency that laid dormant inside.

The other Pali word is kilesa, - you heard about it, isn't it? This one is a very commonly used word. Kilesa are normal defilements and they are associated with what? Ah very good, 'associated with the three evil roots'. These three evil roots of greed, hatred and delusion, they are very powerful. So, these are the three Pali words commonly used by the Buddha. But in this sutta, the Buddha chooses the word āsava because āsava carries a stronger meaning. These are very strong defilements. Especially for people with a lot of delusion, a lot of anger, hatred, a lot of desire, possessiveness, covetousness, lustful type of character, etc - so asava is more towards the very strong type, the very impulsive type, understand or not? Its just like in Cantonese, they say '看你不顺眼' you understand or not? In Hokkien is what? Cantonese has this description '不顺眼' means when he sees he is not happy already. He just wants to tell you off, or he just wants to react to whatever he sees or hears. So, these are what we call very strong out flow of defilements or āsava. So, when it comes to āsava, there are many, many stages and types. So asava is all inclusive, understand or not? It includes the impulsive, aggressive, whether latent or non latent, then some become transgression, means not only at the thought or thinking level, but it has actually transgressed into action and speech, then it turn into very strong ill will and hatred leading to all the evil actions and speeches – they are very powerful.

So the Buddha under this sutta, he mentioned this, he said 'the complete destruction of āsava can only take place in one who 'knows' and 'sees', not in one who 'doesn't know and doesn't see'. That's how this title comes about, - 'knowing' and 'seeing'. Then in this same sutta it is also mentioned, - know what? See what? So this is a very important understanding, so that when you develop your meditation you can do it in accordance with this understanding. This sutta is very special, because the Buddha actually gave detail explanation of the cultivation and it also linked what He had taught so that this sutta when you understand you can develop the understanding of how his teaching come about and how you should develop it. That's why it is very unique, and this sutta is very powerful and people like to quote this sutta because it is like an authority, understand or not? And if I am not wrong, the renounce master they like this book, the Vissudhi Magga; have you all heard of this book? – The Visuddhi Magga (7 stages of purification or satta visuddhi) written by Bhikkhū Buddhagosa, not Buddhadasa. They like this particular book. But the explanation given is according to their understanding.

3.3 Direct Seeing – Seeing Things As They Are!

I will share with you based on what I understand. It is actually quite easy for you to develop the understanding. We start with seeing, so here seeing means what? How do you see? If you want to have penetrative insight to develop the wisdom, how must the seeing comes about? Ah, very good, Sādhu! You must have 'direct seeing', understand or not? So this one is 'direct seeing', not 'mundane' seeing. Mundane seeing is when you see with the normal consciousness, the mundane mind. This direct seeing is different from mundane seeing. Mundane seeing is when you see with your thoughts, with your memory, with your conditioning, with your ideas, views and opinions, with all the words and concepts, etc. Understand or not? - Which means you don't 'see things as they are'; - you don't see truth, you don't see the reality. Whereas when you see things as they are, without the words and the concepts, that type of seeing is the 'direct seeing'. So this direct seeing is very important. Direct seeing will allow you to see 'things as they are' with clarity and without any distortion. Which means you can look into truth, into the reality via the direct seeing. So, when you are able to see things as they are, you see truth and you see the reality without any movement of thoughts, your mind has clarity, not clouded by any thinking, not preoccupied with some emotion or thinking or thought process, - meaning you are heedful, you are not heedless. The heedless they are most of the time lost in thought whereas the heedful are always mindful, aware and silent within. So this direct seeing is very important.

Then, 'knowing' - to me this English word is not so appropriate. This word should be replaced with the word 'understanding'. Of course it depends on how you use and understand these words. Because 'understanding' is not knowledge, understand or not? This 'knowing' comes from the word knowledge. What is knowledge? Knowledge is Rigid. Knowledge is like when you have certain knowledge about certain things, so these are intellectual knowledge. These are like very commonly accepted society's norms; like the capital of Malaysia is Kuala Lumpur and this is knowledge. But when it comes to understanding, it's not rigid; understanding means, the moment you understand, you know what this thing is and you can approach it from any direction, the understanding is still there, but knowledge is different, because when situation is different, that knowledge which is rigid cannot apply anymore. It is just like one size fits all. Everybody is different, understand or not? You cannot say this is the best size of t-shirt or shorts or long pants because everyone is different. So when you meet situation that brings about different conditions behind, you need to have wisdom, which is an understanding, not knowledge, so this word because it is an English translation, so it depends on how you understand it, but if understand it as understanding or wisdom, then it is okay. Then this one stands. So, 'knowing and seeing' can be translated as 'understanding and seeing', you not only understand, you understand through direct seeing, understanding or not? You develop wisdom through your direct seeing, through your ability to insight into phenomena: that's whv the three characteristics of impermanent, suffering state and non-self or anattā or empty nature, they are everywhere and you will see them as they arise because this direct seeing is very different from mundane seeing. So, this one you need to cultivate mindfulness, heedfulness which is beyond thought, beyond mind to see them; you just aware, fully aware from moment to moment then you have to build it up until it become upacāra Samādhi. So, this is how the sutta comes about and this is how the sutta originated. Then, what I will do is, I will go through the sutta with you so that you can understand better.

3.4 The Seven Ways To Root Out The Defilements

There are actually seven ways which the Buddha talked about within the sutta (where you need to develop wisdom) to counter/root out all these āsava or what they called defilements. The 1st way - the Buddha said, you need to approach it with right attention, - some book they use the words right seeing or right vision. But right attention is more appropriate. Then the 2nd way is – the destruction of āsava via exercising restraint. There are in fact many ways, in which one has to develop wisdom (especially the contemplative wisdom) to bring about the destruction of these āsava; then the last OR 7th way is through the development of the seven factors of enlightenment which is to be cultivated. The 3rd way is to exercise Endurance leading to acceptance. Then the 4th way is to exercise proper understanding of their usage; 5th way is avoidance, 6th way is removal.

3.5 The 3 Turnings Of The Four Noble And The 5 Daily Contemplations

Okay, before we go into these, can you roughly let me know how the Buddha actually teaches one to develop the requisite wisdom to counter the first noble truth, realities/suffering - basing on what you have learnt thus far? What is the first noble truth? Noble truth of suffering, isn't it? What has the Buddha taught you under this teaching? What are things that you are supposed to develop and cultivate so that you can have the wisdom needed to overcome these first noble truth sufferings? It is an indirect answer to comprehend this Sabbāsava sutta, understand or not? What are the three types of wisdom that one can develop - as taught by the Buddha under his first sermon, the Dhammacakka pavattana Sutta? What did he mention? Yes! The 'Four Noble Truths', - he said you must cultivate the three turnings of the four noble truths to develop the three types of corresponding wisdom, remember? First turning leads to what wisdom? 'Suttamaya paññā', understand or not? After hearing the sutta, (because during that time you can only hear), then if you develop wisdom, you awaken. The first turning wisdom is call suttamaya paññā. Paññā is wisdom, wisdom borne of hearing the suttas, which are the discourses of the Buddha. So the first teaching is the three turnings of the four noble truths and these three turnings teaching are very important. It will give rise to the three types of corresponding wisdom namely suttamaya pañña, cintāmaya paññā and bhavanamaya paññā.

Apart from the three turnings, what else did He asked the monk to do? Everyday you must do, what are they? Ah, 'contemplate' - on what? Yes, very good, on the 'five daily contemplations'. That's why you will come to know why He teaches like that, because they are all related to this Sabbāsava sutta. If you don't do these reflections, you cannot understand what he said under this sutta. But if you do this cultivation, you will develop the contemplative wisdom that can enable you to have the 'knowing and seeing', - meaning through reflection and contemplation and the three turnings cultivation; you can develop the wisdom to liberate your mind. The first turning gives rise to suttamaya paññā. Suttamaya paññā can also be very penetrative if you have cultivated before, understand or not? In your past, if you have developed the cultivation before, just like Venerable Kondañña - while hearing the first sermon, the Dhammacakka pavattana Sutta, spoken by the Buddha, he became a sotāpanna , then after that when the Buddha continue with the Ānattalakkhana Sutta, all five became Arahants. How come so fast? Only through listening? - This is because they had cultivated before, understand or not? That's why they can be very penetrative.

Then the 2nd turnings wisdom, which is cintāmaya paññā also the same, the Buddha said, after you had listened to what he had expounded or taught, if you still cannot develop the penetrative wisdom because your past pāramī is not stable or strong enough, then what must you do? He said, you must reflect, contemplate and inquire into what He had proclaimed, remember? Under the Second turnings of the four noble truths, the Buddha gave different emphasis to each of the four noble truths. First noble truth, he said, 'this noble truth of suffering or dukkha is to be understood', and you have to inquire, - why did the Buddha say that under this second turning? Then, from there you develop the inquiry; you will then come to understand why he says that? Understand or not? Then after that inquire further as to how can I understand this first noble truth? So you have to reflect and contemplate on what the Buddha said under this first noble truth, can remember? He said the eight conditions: birth, old age, sickness and death are suffering; when you cannot get what you want that is suffering; when there is separation from loved ones and priced possession or whatever you hold on to dearly, that also can leads to suffering if you do not have the wisdom. Then, when things don't go your way, when your expectations are not met, it can also lead to suffering. Then he summarize all of suffering, - he said 'in short, it is due to this craving, that condition grasping to these five aggregates of form and mind that I call suffering'.

This final summary is very important. Then you should inquire: Why did the Buddha say that? How can I understand? When you inquire this way, then you will come to understand that if you don't understand what is suffering, then what will happen to you when you come to this world? You will become miserable, isn't it? Because you will be caught in the midst of suffering as you confront these eight realities without knowing that they are suffering. That's why the Buddha wants you to reflect to contemplate and cultivate this understanding so that when you confront them you know that they will lead to suffering if you don't develop the requisite wisdom via the direct seeing to develop the understanding. It will torment you, it will create a lot of suffering in you, you will have sorrow, lamentation, fear, worry and anxiety, unhappiness, etc and all these will afflict you. So the teaching is very simple. If you know how to reflect and contemplate, then all these understanding will come to you.

Coming back to the final summary of the 1st noble truth, the Buddha said in short, it is due to our self delusion that conditions our craving to grasp and cling onto these five aggregates of form and mind that he calls suffering. So, how can you develop the understanding of this 1st noble truth, final summary? You have to investigate into what he said isn't it? - Because you don't believe him. You need to investigate so that if it is the truth, then it will stand up to the investigation, then your faith can be strengthened. So, how do you investigate? Investigate through what? Through reflection, contemplation and inquiry, understand or not? So, if you have to find out whether this final summary statement is true or not, what must you do? You must ask yourself - what are these five aggregates of form and mind. Otherwise how can you put it to test? Then what did the sutta say, it just say rūpa, vedanā, sañña, sankhārā and viññāna, are the five aggregates of form and mind, so very likely you cannot get any 'head or tail' out of it especially so on the 2 aspects of these 5 aggregates of form and mind unless you have cultivated before. You can check the books, hardly any book writes about it.

3.6 The 2 Aspects Of The Five Aggregates Of Form And Mind

But if you were to inquire, contemplate and reflect into it you will understand, what this form and mind is all about; what this human being is all about, what this living being is all about? We can break them into the five aggregates as taught by the Buddha. First aspect is as a human being: - you have a physical form (this is your form aggregate), then you have a mind, trapped inside. The mind has these abilities: - it can feel, it can perceive, it can arise thinking (or thought consciousness), then it can also arise all the views and opinions, all the mental states, mental intentions, whatever the mind can do, then it can also become conscious of things, so these are the other four aggregates of mind. The physical body and the mind together as a human being form the first aspect of the five aggregates. Then you can put it to test, if I attach to this first aggregates of this physical form, do I suffer? You suffer, isn't it? Because if you think this is you, deludedly, you will worry about it getting old, getting sick and die, isn't it? You will attach to it, you will cling on to it, and then if anything were to happen to this form, you will be afflicted; you will have fear, worry and anxiety. That's why old age, sickness and death can be very traumatic for people who don't have this type of contemplative and meditative wisdom borne of the 3 turnings cultivation. If you don't develop the second turning wisdom, through constant mindful, heedful reflection, contemplation and inquiry, during quiet moments, when you are in a retreat place or when you are at home alone, the contemplative wisdom cannot arise. That's why you need to develop the 5 daily contemplations, the 5 spiritual faculties, followed by the 7 enlightenment factors, and then you use them to investigate Dhamma.

Without sati, which is the first factor of enlightenment, you cannot cultivate the second factor of enlightenment which is Dhamma investigation or Dhammavicaya. These are the sequence that you have to abide by. After you have understood what these five aggregates of form and mind are, then you can move on, understand or not? Then you put it to test, - if I attach to all the feelings that arise, pleasant and unpleasant feelings, painful feeling, via my like and dislike, etc do I suffer? If I have preference to a certain type of feeling, do I suffer? You can find out yourself, you can actually investigate into it. Because every feeling that arise, no matter how pleasurable, how wonderful that state is, it is going to change, it is going to transform, understand or not? So, if you attach and cling on to all these states and expect it to be repeated and when you cannot get what you want, what will happen? Suffering will follow you. Then you will understand that no matter how pleasurable, how fantastic the meditative state is, that's why I always say, they are all condition states, condition arising, hence impermanent. They will come to pass, then if you attach and cling, thinking that this is good meditation, this is what you must realize and have, then if you equate it as enlightenment or progress, then you will be caught, because every feeling that arise no matter how pleasurable, how wonderful, it's a prelude to suffering, because it is going to change, following nature's condition, it is in a state of flux - continuously changing, effervescence, constantly evolving. So nothing is eternally permanent except the unconditioned. When you start to develop this contemplative wisdom then later on, via the direct seeing that arise during your meditation (the third turning cultivation), you will develop a lot of wisdom and understanding, then you will know what they are; the three universal characteristics, you will penetrate them clearly, - the direct seeing will allow you to see them clearly, then you will understand them clearly because this direct seeing will leads to awakening. Then when you awaken, via wisdom, it is no longer deluded. The form and mind is no longer deluded. So nothing can delude or deceive this form and mind into negativity anymore. That's why the destruction of āsava is possible. Understand or not? Then this five daily contemplations as you all know, it helps you to counter all of the first noble truth realities. First three is what? Regarding the form, the body, - this body of ours is of the nature to grow old, get sick and die. For it has not gone beyond old age, sickness and death. Its makeup of elements only, no knowing, so cannot be me. Understand or not? Anattalakkhana Sutta very clearly explained all these, because the Buddha asked, "Is form permanent? Is feeling permanent?" - followed by all the other aggregates of perception, sankhārā and consciousness. They are all impermanent, because from the meditation you will come to know, - they keep on changing, evolving, come and go, come and go; feeling also same - come and go; perception also - come and go. But every time they disappear you never die with it, understand or not? So they are not you. If they are not you, and they are impermanent, then who are you? What are you? That's why you need to meditate, inquire deep to understand clearly why these five aggregates of form and mind which have this universal characteristic of impermanent, leading to suffering is not you. Because they are impermanent, they cannot be a permanent unchanging entity for you to hold on to and cling on to and say that "this is 'I', this is 'ME', therefore this can be mine", understand or not? Then, you will come to understand that this five aggregates of form and mind, they are empty. They are not really a person, an eternally unchanging person with the 'atta' inside. There is no such thing, because everything is 'dependent originating' following the twelve links as explained by the Buddha - you will see them clearly. So through meditation, all these understanding can come about. Then you will come to understand that this form is made of elements only, no knowing, that's why it cannot be you and elements go the way of nature.

That's why we were advised to contemplate daily that: "this body of ours is of the nature to grow old, get sick and die for it has not gone beyond old age, sickness and death". And because this form is not you, hence you should endure this natural process of old age, sickness and death when confronting them, understand or not? Ah, Yes! - This is the meaning of endure, understand or not? You should endure whatever pain, whatever unpleasant states that arise through old age, sickness and death, because not only you are subject to these realities, each and every living being, if they live long enough, they have to confront and experience them (old age, sickness and death) too.

Then the Buddha said you got two choices, 1st choice is to 'accept' this reality then 'accord and flow' with nature's law, then do what you have to do, to resolve it amicably, so that it does not torment you so much, so that your mind state can be more peaceful; Then if you need to see a doctor to seek a cure, you seek a cure, but before the cure come, you have to endure, understand or not? Remember, you got two choices, 1st choice is to accept and be at peace, 2nd choice is to react and become miserable over it.

It will be worst if you project your thoughts. Project your thought means what? Applying wrong attention! - meaning things that are unfit for attention you go and attend to it. Like when the doctor confirm that you got certain critical disease, or sickness, then the doctor does a biopsy and confirms that it is terminal cancer and the situation is quite bad, then what happens? Instead of having a second opinion to confirm this reality, your thought starts to project, understand or not? You attend to things that are no longer a reality, so that is wrong attention. You project your thought and trigger off what? Yes! - Fear, worry and anxiety, then you become miserable, but the fact is, these are the first noble truth realities of life and existence, and the form will go that way, understand or not?

When conditions are not right, disease will arise, and when disease arises, you need to develop the understanding that this is part of the bodily condition, understand or not? Then what did the Buddha said? 'When your body is sick, do not allow your mind also to be sick', remember or not? This is how you should reflect and contemplate, but if you go and project your thoughts and worry about it, then your mind is more sick than your body. Then you got fear and what is fear? - 'Negative energy field'. That's how your immune system will go down and everything will go haywire; so the Buddha said if you continue to apply wrong attention, via projecting your thought to attend to things that are unfit for attention, it means you don't have wisdom borne of the direct seeing and penetrative understanding. Because you never meditate, you never contemplate, you never develop this wisdom hence the reason why you will continue to attend to things that are unfit for attention, and then it will bring about all these sufferings. The Buddha gave a lot of examples on what are the things that are unfit for attention; afterward I will read to you, what are the things that are unfit for attention, one of them is thought projection, which I had just shared with you.

So if you understand all these, the Buddha said when you have wrong attention, you will know via mindfulness, because when you attend to things that are unfit for attention the unarisen āsava or defilements they will arise very strongly - like your fear, worry and anxiety, sorrow and lamentation, your insecurity, your panic etc. Then whatever that is already within you (the āsava that has arisen), it will also increase; but if you attend to things that are fit for attention, then the unarisen āsava will not arise and arisen āsava will cease to be. The Buddha also explains what are the things that are fit for attention? Yes! 'Wholesomeness' is one them, but the main one is the four noble truths.

3.7 Āsava To Be Abandoned By Exercising Right Attention

The Buddha said it in the Sabbāsava Sutta, the first particular way to fight defilement is to only attend to things that are fit for attention - namely by dwelling correctly into the three turnings of the four noble truths. I.e. you attend to the first noble truth realities via contemplating: this is suffering, these are the realities; and then you attend to the second noble truth via contemplating: these are the causes of suffering, which is craving or attachment borne of self-delusion; then you attend to the third noble truth: suffering can end, suffering need not be when there is wisdom. Enlightenment in the here and the now is possible, and this is cessation, cessation of suffering, - if you attend to all these then you will develop the wisdom; then the last one is to attend to the 4th Noble Truth via contemplating: this is the noble eight fold path that will lead to the end of all suffering. So if you attend to this and contemplate its 2nd turning which states that 'this noble eight fold path is to be cultivated', you will then cultivate it to develop the cintāmaya paññā wisdom; then also the 3rd turning which states that 'this noble eight-fold path has already been cultivated'. That's why if you attend to it using the three turnings of the four noble truths, the Buddha said, - "Immediately the arisen āsava will cease to be, and the unrisen asava cannot arise. This is how you abandon the defilement. Understand or not? It's only possible through the three turnings of the four noble truths. And these five daily contemplations is part of the second turnings, because this one involves contemplation. So this is part of the second turnings, then there is another one, third one is what?

The Buddha always advises the monks to reflect, - you heard of this word anusati? You haven't heard of this word? What about Buddhānussati, Dhammānussati, Sanghānussati and Maranānussati? It is in the teaching isn't it? Why does the Buddha ask you to contemplate on the Buddha's nine great virtues via Buddhānussati cultivation? Why contemplate on the Dhamma via Dhammānussati? Then why contemplate what constitute the Sangha and their qualities via Sanghānussati? So that you can develop wisdom and understanding from such contemplations and also because the Buddha, Dhamma and the Sangha are the triple gems that you had taken refuge in; so that you understand, when you take those refuges, you know what you are taking. With these, vou will understand the deep meaning behind taking of refuge in the triple gems. The purpose of refuge is for 'you' to develop affinity to connect to the triple gems and stay with the triple gems whenever you arise or whenever there is condition, so that the whole cultivation can be very different. Then to contemplate on that means, to develop the urgency of practice via wisdom to understand that this life, you can never be sure, how long you live, so that you will develop the urgency to cultivate.

Then the monk also need to contemplation on alms food, the four requisites that are offered to them so that they can check whether they are worthy of such offerings, understand or not? That's why you also have to contemplate on the proper usage of all those things just like how the Buddha advised the monks. This cultivation is part and parcel of the teaching.

3.8 Āsava To Be Abandoned By Exercising Avoidance

Then coming to avoidance, what must you avoid? The Buddha said if you don't avoid, it will leads to downfall, it will lead to the arising of āsava — both the unrisen and the arisen, they will increase tremendously. So what are the things that you must avoid? During your closing puja, every time you made that aspiration, to avoid who? Ah, Yes! - The foolish and the heedless, understand or not? Then what else to avoid? The evil, foolish and heedless ones are those with the 3 evil roots of Greed, Hatred and Delusion. Then the other one is dangerous situations, understand or not?

In life, there are a lot of circumstances or situations that can be very dangerous so you don't try to be a hero, because this form and mind is very fragile, you need a lot of heedfulness, a lot of understanding to bring about the causes and conditions for you to avoid all these; that's why I always share with you all, - kamma is like that, - whenever there is condition, it will arise, understand or not? When you avoid the dangerous conditions for their arising, then there is no condition, then the possibility of it arising is very, very much lower or slimmer; that's why with wisdom, you can just accord and flow and you will know what to do and you will know how to avoid all these - only through wisdom, nothing else. Understand or not?

3.9 Āsava To Be Abandoned By Exercising Restraint

Then we come to the part on exercising restraint, this one is very important. The Buddha said, when you live your daily life, you need to have daily mindfulness, you need to have this three turnings and five daily contemplations wisdom developed, otherwise every time when you see something, hear something, smell something, taste something, tactilely feel or think during your daily life, you will not have the requisite wisdom and understanding that will allow you to exercise restraint, understand or not? If you are not restraint in what you see, what will happen? Nowadays internet technology is so advance and very fantastic, isn't it? If every day you allow the kids to play with their tablet, computer and smart phones (hopefully they just play games), - what happen if they go into pornography web sites? I tell you, their whole thinking and thoughts are all in that direction. Then what happens if they do that? Their unarisen āsava like lust, desire and craving will shoot up like anything (if you have an index for it), the arisen one will also become worst, understand or not? That's why you cannot see things without sense restraint borne of wise attention, that's why within the eight precepts, there is the 7th precept which requires one to undertake the training rules to abstain from dancing, singing, putting on iewelry, ornaments and perfume and watching all those UNSIGHTLY entertainments, which are stumbling blocks to that which is wholesome because it can make you heedless. So you have to restraint, understand or not? That's why precepts are all about cultivating restraint, just like the 1st precept: - 'I undertake the training rule not to kill or cause harm to fellow living beings'; to do that you need to exercise restraint, understand or not? You see somebody you don't like, then you get violent and want to wrack that person, there is no restraint at all. Understand or not? So, how can you live? These asava or defilements, they are very powerful, (both latent and hidden and also the ones that are very active on the surface, the violent type, spontaneous type). These later ones are borne of habitual tendencies, that's why when you see something you just react very fast, then whatever your mind is incline at it will get accelerated or become stronger, understand or not? So when you listen to something, let's say nice music, if there is no restraint and inner awareness or clarity, you will develop the other extreme, which is attachment, clinging and craving, then what will happen? Let's say somebody switch off the music, or it could be your son changing channel, then without restraint, you get very angry, understand or not? So, that's how all the asava, or the latent tendencies, they can still come out when there is condition.

But, when you read the sutta, chances are you cannot understand. Afterwards I will read through the sutta for you, then maybe after my explanation the meaning can stand out otherwise you cannot link, because you don't know how the teaching comes about, then you will go and do all those so called 'fantastic' meditation, and you think that is what 'Knowing and seeing' is all about and you will be trapped, because it is not about all those conditioned states of mind - focusing or concentration that enables you to see very minute things via psychic or energy field. It's about cultivation in daily life, in the midst of life, without the conditioned mind in appanā-samādhi and concentration, but instead with a free mind: when all your latent tendencies are not suppressed, then you go and live your life, you subject yourselves to all the tests while in the midst of life, - at the place you work, when you are doing your daily chores, when you are with society, when you are with your fellow community workers; you put your mind to test, to see whether these latent tendencies or this asavsa or kilesa, they are still active or not? That's why if you don't cultivate noble eightfold path, then you don't have this ability to live life in accordance with the noble eightfold path; - meaning the noble eightfold path has become a part of you already. Otherwise you are still far away from becoming what they call noble ones or enlighten ones. These are all in the sutta, in the teaching, so this ability to exercise mental restraint while living life is very important and with this explanation hopefully you can understand the cultivation better.

Every sense experience you have to exercise restraint because you had undertaken the training rules to keep your precepts, may it be the 5 precepts, the eight precepts, the ten precepts or the monk precepts and the nun precepts, they are the same, you have to exercise restraint, then only you can develop the requisite wisdom to free your mind. Then it will not afflict you, then asava will not arise, otherwise, they will keep on arising. Then they will keep on becoming active and the 3 evil roots and the hindrances of mind will keep on arising, then no amount of meditation and retreat can help you because in your daily life you are not able to exercise the necessary restraint needed to free your mind, understand or not?

3.10 'Yoniso Manasikāra' And Daily Practices

All these, we are referring to, is the daily mindfulness cultivation in daily life; how you learn to put your attention when you see something, hear something, smell something, or experience a sense perception, understand or not? Every day when you reflect and contemplate you have to do that, understand or not? Every moment, every instant when you see something, - the moment of seeing is very important. That's why the Buddha teaches this way, you heard of this word, 'Yoniso Manasikāra'? What is the meaning of this word? This word 'yoniso' means 'wise', and the word 'manasikāra' means 'attention'; so you need to have 'wise attention' at the moment of sense experience, without this, the Buddha said you will have problem, that's why in the sutta it was mentioned, that the destruction of asava only happens in one 'who knows and sees'. Then the Buddha asked, see what? And know what? - See with 'Yoniso Manasikāra', - the Buddha mentioned this very clearly.

You must 'see' and then develop clear understanding via the 'direct seeing', - leading to the knowing and seeing. You develop the wisdom via the three turnings of the four noble truths, especially so via the 2nd turning's initial contemplative wisdom leading to the 3rd turning's direct seeing wisdom. When you have already developed this wisdom it means you have the understanding already. Then when you already have the understanding and then you see, what happens? You can then see with 'Yoniso Manasikara', understand or not? Then āsava cannot arise. Those who don't have 'Yoniso Manasikāra', āsava will become very, very strong, very powerful and you cannot deal with it. So, now can you understand and follow? We had completed the first 2 ways to overcome defilements, via the exercise of right attention and restraint.

3.11 Āsava To Be Abandoned By Exercising Endurance

The 3rd way is via the exercise of endurance. Just now I said, like you are in a foreign country, let's say Mount Er Mei, we went there recently, the temperature is actually very nice, but at the summit, they call 'Jing Ding', it's very cold, but you don't feel it, because with mindfulness, with the faith, with the Saddha, Viriya, Sati, Samadhi and Pañña, there were so much joy, so much peace, so much stillness and tranquility, the energy there was very strong, the environment, the condition are so conducive and because of that, you don't feel it, you don't need to endure. Endure here means, if let say, as a Theravada monk if nobody offers you any food, then you cannot eat, you have to endure the hunger, understand or not? Can be as serious as that, because I was told by a monk, Ajahn Jagaro, he said, throughout his (don't know how many) years of monkhood, may be nearly twenty years, he only got 2 days without offering and he has to endure it, because after 12pm, he never eat. Of course he drinks, understand or not? So endurance means, when you are in the forest, when you are cultivating, you have to endure the hunger, the wind, the rain, etc if people don't offer you any of the 4 requisites. That is, if people don't offer, you don't have, then you have to endure, understand or not?

3.12 Āsava To Be Abandoned By Exercising Proper Usage

If your pāramī is good, you will receive, and then you can make use of it; when you make use of them, you must understand their purpose, that's why you have to reflect and contemplate on the proper use of these four requisites that people offered to you. The four requisites, you all are familiar, isn't it? What are they? Yes! They are food, robe, shelter and medication. You have to reflect on them. These food are offered by people who are very sincere, very generous, so you should rejoice with their wholesomeness; you should also be worthy of offering via cultivating sincerely, understand or not? That's why you have to reflect, then this food is not for you to develop craving, understand or not? And also this food is not for you to beautify your body etc, understand or not? So, everything is clearly stated in the monk's rules, - the purpose of food, how you reflect, how you contemplate and to be worthy of such offerings what must you do in return; then similarly, for the robes, the purpose is to cover your private part, to ward away the cold, flies, insect, etc, understand or not? So, when you understand their purpose, you have a lot of gratitude towards those people who had offered it to you, so that you can use it appropriately, so that it is conducive for you to develop the cultivation, then because of that, there is symbiosis because you are worthy of the offering, it's field of merits is immeasurable. So, all these you will start to understand, then the purpose of shelter is to ward against bad weather and all those things, so that you can have a conducive environment to cultivate and meditate, then medicine is for you to use when you are sick, for you to recover, so that you can be in better state of health. Nowadays it may include vitamins/ multivitamins, health supplements, etc.

3.13 Āsava To Be Abandoned By Exercising Avoidance

Then the 4th way is avoidance, we had already discussed this, to avoid the foolish and heedless, - those that bring about downfall, understand or not? Foolish and heedless include those gamblers, drug addicts, all those who have a lot of negative tendencies. Then dangerous situations – which I had already explained; you avoid dangerous situations, like when you see a cobra, you don't go and be a hero, by thinking that 'oh!...I meditate, and I got metta so nothing to worry'; I tell you unless you are really sure, don't try, because the Buddha said, if you can, you have to avoid the conditions for things to happen, because you never know, - certain lives, you may, out of ignorance, join a group of people to go and kill snakes, understand or not? You will never know, - because when I was very young, I almost participated as one of them. A group of us in our village, - one of them saw a snake, then he go and look for bamboo, last time very easy to find bamboo, he starts to attack the snake, the snake was wounded then everybody like go and kill the snake, I almost took a stick and join them, because as a kid, you think it was fun, but the moment I held the stick my hand shivered, then I felt something, I cannot do it, then I just put it down, I just couldn't do it, then I went off. So certain conditions, if you don't have the good karmic inheritance or past cultivation understanding, you can have situations through delusion and ignorance caused all these killings, then when you are not careful, you try to be a hero, you reap what you sow, - because you killed snakes and now there is condition, then the snake will kill you, understand or not? These are conditions made available for it to happen. So, all these avoidance is for you to develop the understanding, because under the five daily contemplations, which I didn't finish, first three is only about your body getting old, getting sick and die; fourth contemplation is, you - reflect on separation from loved ones and whatever possession that you hold on to dearly, then the 5th or last one is what? Yes! - Law of Kamma, - "You are born of your kamma, heir to your kamma, conditioned and supported by your kamma, and you are what you are because of your kamma". And from there, you will come to understand the importance of taking care of our kamma thereby establishing the 1st right view with regards to the law of kamma because kamma played such a great role in our life; this is how the advises of the Buddha to all beings, to avoid all evil, do good and purify their mind comes about. Then how to avoid all evil? You have to keep your precepts. You have to train your mind to be aware, to be heedful to see your mental intentions behind all of your actions, speech and thought processes; then how to purify your mind? - Via cultivating the three turnings of the 4 Noble Truths.

So all the teachings are interconnected and interlink and they will fall into place when you understand them. That's why these 3: - the three turnings of the four noble truths, five daily contemplations and the anusati cultivations, - they are the real meditation. Understand or not? The three turnings cultivation include the cultivation of noble eightfold path, the four foundations of mindfulness, the seven factors of enlightenment and the dependent origination, - everything is inside there, because nothing is apart from this four noble truths. Understand or not? So this is the real meditation and to do this meditation, you only need to have the five spiritual faculties that will bring about the condition for the mental hindrances not to be there to hinder you from entering the meditative state of inner peace, inner calmness and inner awareness to be heedful, that's why they are all connected, then after avoidance is what? Ah, removal.

3.14 Asava To Be Abandoned By Exercising Removal

Removal is like your four right efforts, understand or not? The unarisen hindrance or āsava (like sensual desire, ill will together with delusion) when they arise, what must you do? You must abandon then, understand or not? Right effort to abandon them, then right effort to prevent it from arising; that's why you must cultivate in this way through mindfulness, through heedfulness, and this one you need to abandon them because it has arisen already, understand or not? Then later on when you reflect and contemplate, when your wisdom is very strong, very stable, then you can at the moment of sense experience before they arise, this wisdom 'Yoniso Manasikāra' will enable you to prevent it from arising. Then even when you see pornography or very disturbing type of show, 'inside' it is totally still, silent and like no reaction at all. Understand or not? Because there is wisdom, it is not deluded by all these external phenomena world of forms, vibration, etc and nothing can cause it to stir anymore, because no more delusion, the form and mind is no longer deluded, understand or not? So this removal is more or less like your four right efforts. Then the last one - the Buddha said, if after all these first 6 types of cultivation also you still can stir your mind, then you have to finally cultivate via development the seven factors of enlightenment. Okay, can understand or not? So far is it okay? I will read to you the Sabbāsava sutta now so that you can develop better understanding.

3.15 Sabbāsava Sutta

This Sabbāsava Sutta, the summary of it, the Buddha said:

'Bhikkhū, I said that the destruction of āsava is for the one 'who knows and sees', not for one who 'does not know and see'. Who knows and see what? The Buddha said 'wise attention', and 'unwise attention', means 'Yoniso Manasikāra' and 'Ayoniso Manasikāra'. When one attends unwisely, unarisen āsava arise and arisen āsava increase, understand or not? When one attends wisely, unarisen āsava does not arise, and arisen āsava cease to be. You see, - this is the final summary. Understand or not? Then He said: 'bhikkhū, there are āsava that should be abandon by right attention, there are āsava that should be abandon by restraint, there are āsava should be abandon by usage, there are āsava that should be abandon by enduring and there are āsava that should be abandon by avoiding. Then finally there are āsava that should be abandoned by removal. Then the last one, there are āsava that should be abandon by developing or cultivating.

Then the Buddha continues, he said the first way, - āsava that should be abandon by right attention: - by attending to things that are fit for attention; the Buddha gives this example, he said, what are the things that are unfit for attention that he attends? He said: 'there are things such that he attends to them the unrisen āsava of sensual desire in him arise, the arisen āsava of sensual desire in him increases, the unarisen āsava of becoming arising in him, and the arisen āsava of becoming increases, then He said the unarisen āsava of ignorant will also arise in him, and the arisen āsava of ignorant increases. So these are thing unfit for attention that he attends to, and what are things fit for attention that he does not attend to? There are things such that when he attends to them the unarisen āsava of sensual desire, becoming and ignorant does not arise, then likewise the arisen one cease.

This is how he attends unwisely, - listen, the Buddha gave these examples, (not I quote one), "Was I so and so in the past? Was I not so and so in the past? What was I in the past? How was I in the past? How was I in the past? Having been what, what did I become in the past? What shall I be in the future? What shall I not be in the future? How shall I be in the future? Having being what, what about the present thus: 'Am I? Am I not? What am I? How am I? Where has this being come from? Where will it go? All these he said, is like thought projection into the past and future to arise fear, worry and anxiety because of the strong personality view. Like during occasion when 'you' are diseased or confronting some of the first noble truth realities. So the Buddha refers all these to self doubt, such that this doubt arise in a person, attached to the personality view or sakkāyaditthi - selfdelusion. When he attends unwisely in this way, the Buddha said, the view of self exist, and to him they are like very real, true and established. Then the worst is, the Buddha said, if they attend in this way, the 'Self' view will be very strongly established in them, because they will come to this view, he said...okay I will read to you the whole thing, that will be better. He said 'when one attends unwisely in this way, one of the six Self views arise in him', - 'the view of self exists for me, arise in him as true and established, or the view - no self exists for me arise in him' as true and established. or the view 'I perceive self with self' as true and established in him, or the view 'I perceive not-self with self' arise in him as true and established or the view 'I perceive self as non-self or no self arise in him' as true and established or else he has some such view as this: (you listen this is the wrong view during that time) - "It is this self of mine that speaks and feel and experience here and there, the result of good and bad actions, but this self of mine is permanent, ever lasting, eternal, not subject to change, and it will endure as long as eternity'. This speculative view, bhikkhū is called the thicket of views, the wilderness of views, the compulsion of views, the contortion of views, the vacillation of view, and the fetters of views. Fettered by the fetters of views, the untaught ordinary person is not freed from birth, old age, suffering, disease and death, from sorrow, lamentation, pain, grief and despair. He is not free from suffering, the Buddha said.

Then the Buddha continues to emphasize on the danger of this self-delusion, thinking that this 'atta', is a permanent unchanging entity which they call the soul that trans-migrate from one life to another, that is responsible for your thinking, your speech, your action and everything that you do. Then, he continues, He said, 'Bhikkhū, a well taught noble disciple who has regard for noble one and skilful and disciplined in the dhamma who has regard for true man and is skill and discipline in the dhamma understand what things are fit for attention and what things are unfit for attention. Since that is so, he does not attend to those things unfit for attention and he attends to those things fit for attention'. Ah, here we come to the very important point, as stated by the Buddha: 'what are the things that are fit for attention?' He said he attends wisely, 'this is suffering', he attends wisely; 'this is the cause of the origination of suffering', he attends wisely; 'this is the cessation of suffering' he attends wisely; 'This is the way leading to the cessation of suffering', all these he attends wisely; when he attends wisely in this way, three fetters are abandon in him, personality view, doubt and adherence to rites and rituals. That is, the first three fetters are severed, and these are called the āsava that should be abandoned by right attention so that one can become a sotāpanna.

There is another version which I got from another source. In this version the Buddha explained Right attention slightly differently. What is right attention? - attending to things that are fit for attention: Like 'this is the first noble truth of dukkha that explains clearly the realities of life and existence', he attends wisely; 'the origin of suffering is craving, conditioned by delusion', he attends wisely; 'this is the cessation of suffering, leading to enlightenment in the here and the now – Nibbāna', he attends wisely; and this is 'the path leading to the cessation of all suffering, namely the Noble Eightfold Path', he attends wisely; when he attends wisely in this way, three fetters are abandon: personality view, doubt and adherence to rites and rituals. So rooting out self-views and attachment to rites and rituals and doubts leads to the realization of the first stage of sainthood or sotāpanna.

So, this Sabbāsava Sutta, is very meaningful, and the āsava to be abandoned via usage as explained in the same sutta is also very good. The Buddha asked, 'what āsava, bhikkhū should be abandoned by usage?' Here a bhikkhū reflecting wisely, uses the robe for only protection from cold, for protection from heat, for protection from contact with flies, mosquito, wind, sun and creepy things and only for the purpose of concealing the private part; 'reflecting wisely he uses alms bowls, neither for amusement or for intoxication, nor for the sake of physical beauty and attractiveness. but only for the endurance and continuity of this body, for ending discomfort and for assisting the holy life', considering: 'thus I shall terminate old feeling without arising new feeling, and I shall be healthy and blameless and I shall live in comfort'. "Reflecting wisely, he uses the resting place only for protection from cold, for protection from heat, for protection from contact with flies, mosquitoes, the wind, the sun, the creepy things, and only for the purpose of warding off perils of climate and for enjoying retreat. Reflecting wisely he uses medicinal requisites only for protection from arising afflicting feelings, and for the benefits of good health so that this body that is needed for cultivation can be given sustenance.

All these the Buddha explained very clearly, then likewise, for āsava that are to be abandoned via enduring, removal and avoiding. He said: 'what āsava, bhikkhū should be abandoned by enduring?' Here a bhikkhū, reflecting wisely, bears cold, heat, hunger and thirst and contact with gadflies, mosquitoes, wind, sun and creepy things; endure ill spoken, unwelcome words and arisen bodily feeling that are painful, racking, sharp, piercing, disagreeable, distressing and menacing to life. While āsava, vexation and fever might arise in one who does not endure such things, there are no āsava, vexation and fear in one who endures them. These are call āsava that should be abandoned by enduring. The reason being our consciousness is trapped inside this physical form, understand or not? Whatever that this physical form undergo, (as explained in your five daily contemplations, the first three) you need to endure them. Sometimes in the forest when they have this disease called malaria, it can be quite miserable because they feel suddenly very cold and suddenly like a lot of heat, then pain, and a lot of other feelings that are not easy to endure; then without medication, it is not easy, but many monks they just endure through them. If you read those books that record monk's experience, especially the biography of Ajahn Mun, there are a lot of instances where it was mentioned that he endured through the suffering of being attacked by malaria a couple of times. No medication, they just endure through, and survive.

Then there are āsava that are abandoned by avoiding, this one I will have to read to you. "What āsava, bhikkhū, should be abandoned by avoiding? Here a bhikkhū reflecting wisely, avoid a wild elephant, avoid a wild dog, a snake, a stump, a bramble patch, a chasm, a cliff, a cesspit, a sewer. Reflecting wisely, (note: the word is always reflecting wisely), he avoids sitting on unsuitable seats, wandering to unsuitable resorts, and associating with fools and bad friends, - if he were to do so, wise companion in the holy life, might suspect him of evil. While āsava, vexation and evil might arise in one who does not avoid these things, there are no āsava, vexation, and evil in one who avoids that. These are āsava that should be abandoned by avoiding.

3.16 Āsava To Be Abandoned By Removal

Then, for āsava that should be abandoned by removal the Buddha continue by asking, 'What āsava bhikkhū should be removed by removal?' Here a bhikkhū reflecting wisely, does not tolerate the arisen thought of sensual desire, he abandons it, he removes it, does away with it and eliminate it; he does not tolerate an arisen thought of ill-will....., he does not tolerate an arisen thought of cruelty......, he does not tolerate an arisen thought of evil unwholesome state, he abandons them, removes them, does away with them, and eliminates them. While āsava, vexation and evil might arise in one who does not remove such thoughts, there are no āsava, vexation and evil in one who remove them, these are call the āsava that should be abandoned by removal.

3.17 Āsava To Be Abandoned By Development

Then by development, - 'what āsava, bhikkhū should be abandoned by cultivation or developing?' Here, a bhikkhū reflecting wisely, (the key word is always reflecting wisely via wise contemplation and reflection), develops mindfulness, enlightenment factor - sati, which is supported by seclusion, dispassion and cessation and ripens in him relinquishment or liberation; he develops the investigation of enlightenment dhamma factor.... the energy or enlightenment factor...., then pīti enlightenment factor...., then the tranquility or passadhi enlightenment factor...., then Samādhi enlightenment factor..... And upekkhā enlightenment factor, which are supported by seclusion, dispassion, cessation and ripens in relinquishment or liberation of mind. While asava, vexation and evil might arise in one who does not develop these enlightenment factors, there are no āsava, vexation and evil in one who develops them. So, these are the asava that should be abandoned by cultivation or development.

Then towards the later part, as you cultivate you will start to understand why here they use the English word '.....supported by seclusion, dispassion, disenchantment and all those things....', - cessation here is correct, but actually your mind undergoes transformation differently, because I remember at that time, you will reach a point of understanding, where the whole of your brain's sankhārā is very different and your mindfulness is so clear, you can see them all and because your wisdom is so stable you can understand them. Then you will come to know very clearly: sankhārā is impermanent or anicca, sankhārā is really suffering or dukkha, then they are all not 'real', but condition arising, causal phenomena, they are all anatta and empty, and the understanding is very clear. Then your mind will understand, 'think also like that, don't think also like that'. Then the mind becomes very different. then later on as it progresses, as you develop such sensitivity and understanding, then during every moment of arising of sankhārā, (even the moment of perception, the moment of feeling, or moment of activity of mind, or moment of consciousness), that itself is suffering, - the very fine suffering, you will feel it so clearly, then it is like telling you, 'if you want to continue to have suffering, then you continue to use or arise your thought', - that's why cessation will happen. Everything that arise, you will come to understand their under lying characteristics and there is no more fear, but only this wisdom and understanding which is so powerful that it can enable you to feel the very fine suffering, the asava, - so fine and yet so clear; you will know, then this thought, - it is like it cannot even move, at that moment even the very moment of perceiving it or knowing it (no need to say go and think, or go and arise any of this attention), it straight away cannot continue, because that very fine suffering state is so clear; i.e. every moment of consciousness is suffering, every moment of contact is suffering. And it is exactly like what the Buddha described in the fire sermon. "the eye is burning, contact is burning, consciousness that arise upon contact is burning, then feeling within that contact is burning, everything is burning!" and that is the real description in the fire sermon. That's why, that fire sermon, when the Buddha spoke, so many got enlighten, especially the non-humans. So, with this I think I will end the talk.

4 Questions and Answers

Do you all have any questions? If not, I was told by Bro. Gan via SMS that there was one question. Bro. Gan, can you read out the question?

4.1 Are jhānas necessary for enlightenment?

Question 1: Brother Teoh, relating to this topic some meditators think that one should cultivate until the fourth jhāna to see our past life, to know kamma or understand kamma and this can help one to be on the path of realization; do you think it is subject to individual practice or is encouraged by taking into consideration of our modern life?

Brother Teoh: Okay, thank you for the guestion. So what do you think after hearing this sutta? 'Is that which is being asked, fit for attention or not? The Buddha had in the sutta explained it very clearly already, so no need for me to explain anymore, understand or not? Is it fit for attention? Definitely not fit for attention because it has got nothing to do with four noble truths, isn't it? You hope you can also be like the Sammā Sambuddha, after he became fully enlightened, - what did he do for the seven weeks after his enlightenment? He saw one birth, two births then countless births, but he never said all these segmented form and mind is him, understand or not? These are the various segments of what he was, and he only develop the understanding of how kamma works, understand or not? How with this kamma it condition this type of birth and this type of beings. He never said wah...last time I am so handsome, I am so powerful, I was the king, I am what, - because he was not deluded anymore. He did tell you via the Jataka stories that he was born as what during that life, understand or not? That segmented life he was born as what? But he understands clearly that those segmented form and mind is not him. Understand or not? He never says it is him. That's why he said you don't go and attend to guestions like, 'who was I in the past? Am I this or am I not this?' What have these got to do with the four noble truths? If you don't develop wisdom, and you attend to all these, then thicket of views will arise as per Sabbāsava sutta, understand or not? Similarly for sakkāyaditthi or self delusion, -'oh, I was so and so, and last time, I was such a monk, I cultivate until like that, I got this jhāna, that jhāna ...', so you think you inherit everything? Of course it's recorded in the law of kamma, but, whatever that was done before the awakening, has delusion, understand or not? So, if it is not fit for attention, you better focus on the dhamma, understand or not? I do not deny that those who can develop all these concentrations have this ability to read mind and see past lives. But what was the Buddha's advice to the monks then? It is against the Patimokkha to exhibit any of these psychic abilities. Understand or not? He said, all these psychic powers, you should not touch because they are not conducive to the holy life; but if it comes about as a by-product, and you can develop wisdom and understanding out of it, then it's okay. But you must know how to develop wisdom out of it. Because if you are not careful and you got yourself entangled with this energy field and psychic training and you don't have the understanding and perfections like those of the great Bodhisattva and Sammā Sambuddha, - everything you see, you think is your past life, you will get into big trouble, I tell you.

They may not be what you think because of thoughts projection. When you use thought without wisdom, thought can become very, very 'shrewd'. There was one incident, during the Buddha's time, there was one person who came and see Venerable Ananda then he wants to approach the Buddha and asked the Buddha because - he got one teacher who told him this: 'If every life you make offering via slaughtering the chicken and offer it to the king of Tavatimsa heaven (if I am not wrong), you will take rebirth up there and join him to become like him. So this teacher he got psychic, understand or not? Then he checked, ya, for the last don't know how many births he actually took birth up there, and every life, what he did was also the same type of slaughtering of chicken and making of all these similar offerings. You know what happened when the Buddha checked? The Buddha told this person, 'you go back and tell your master, if he offer one more time he will go into Aviji hell, because that kamma that condition those births were from another life, understand or not?' According to the Buddha, when he was a monk in that life, he has this psychic ability too, understand or not? This abhiñña, or psychic ability, then he saw, there were a few monks, (I think eight or nine monks) trapped in a dessert storm very cold and almost dying, then he used his psychic to help them and because of that he got these nine births up there; it is mainly because of his craving, his desire, to be born up there and his wish was fulfilled, understand or not? That's why if you don't understand and you simply go and say oh, I saw this, this must be from my past life, my previous life. I did this, that's why eight times also I take birth up there. Ha! Ha! You think it is from those offerings, but because you are not a Sammā Sambuddha you can be mistaken, understand or not? Like the Buddha say, kamma is very complex, you cannot rely on what you see. What you see are mostly thought's projections. Your own dream also you cannot understand and you want to see past life. Not to say I discourage all these, because it's your choice. Meditation is entirely your choice; you are free to develop any type of meditation. I respect you for what you are, but, be wise because nothing 'frees you', except wisdom. Without 'knowing and seeing, understanding and direct seeing leading to 'Yoniso Manasikāra' or wise attention at the moment of sense experience to live your daily life, you cannot liberate from the asava. The only thing that can liberate your mind is wisdom, borne of the direct seeing. Through the direct seeing you awaken, through the contemplative wisdom you understand, and then you penetrate. Then you develop the type of wisdom that will protect you; - with every moment of sense experience, every moment of attention, the mind that has the wisdom and the enlightenment factors will understand. Without the enlightenment factors, if you do only jhanas, you cannot understand because: - what are the five ihanic factors? What are they? The jhanic factors, - cannot remember? I gave a talk on Samatha and Vipasanna earlier on, so what are the five jhānic factors? Those who do jhāna, they will know, what are they? Ah... vitaka, vicāra, then pīti, sukha, and ekaggatā, these are the five jhānic factors. Out of these, which one is the enlightenment factor? Ah...only one - pīti, understand or not? So if you develop only this, then where do you end up? You are short of six enlightenment factors. and Sati the 1st factor of enlightenment factor also not there, understands or not? And when you are in these jhanic factors abiding while in these jhanas, your mind is so calm and so still, the energy field is so strong, everything is suppressed, understand or not? All these latent tendencies or anusayas, they are all suppressed, cannot surface; that's why you cannot put them to test. You cannot know what your actual mind state is. You are like an enlightened being, I tell you. Whatever you attend to, inside your heart there are no movements at all, because I went through that before during the early years - about thirty over years ago, or may be more than that, because it was the year I entered University Malaya - in the year 1975, so thirty-nine years ago.

That first night at the University, I meditated and I went into the formless jhānas and then I was stuck there for so many years, because at that time, really, the mettā was so strong, the energy was so strong, your concentration is so strong, your mind state is so strong and I didn't go into one-pointedness, instead I went into continuous mindfulness leading to the absorption of mind and yet I was trapped, because I did ānāpānasati which I inherited from my past, then I went into all these absorptions, then here around the heart area, it is like one cylinder of energy, very still, nothing can move it, lightning strike also cannot cause even the slightest movement at the heart area, it was so still. And that time, really, wah, you think you 'Cow Tim' '搞掂' already. Later on, when I graduated, four years later, I came out to work, then when I touched money, and when I also don't meditate so often, then I started to see this heart area, starting to stir again, then there is still craving, like want to become financially very successful, want to study law, want to do this, want to do that, then I realize something not right, so I inquired - 'what was going on?' - Because the materialistic world can lure the anusava or latent tendencies (which were not rooted out as vet) to surface, then later on I met this monk, a very good monk, Phra Ajahn Yantra: - he told me the real meditation/highest meditation, so I thought it must be something fantastic, but instead he just said very simply, "we choose aware, every action, every movement in the present moment", then I looked at him, and I was full of joy, I told myself, 'No wonder, I have yet to do the real meditation, because I have been doing ānāpānasati, and I only focus and concentrate my mind to develop the absorption and never do the daily mindfulness. because I never went into the four foundations of mindfulness practices', then from that moment onwards I determine to do it. Then because of my past, I was very lucky, - within two weeks, my daily mindfulness came, then I reversed my whole cultivation, I came out from that absorption and concentration, I relinquished everything, I start from square one again. Then I go into daily life, then I realize daily mindfulness is not that difficult, it can be done, it can be done! You must have the spiritual faculty of saddhā or faith, then you must understand the teaching very clearly, then it can be done.

Okay? So hopefully by now you can understand. So don't go and argue with people, because right and wrong got no meaning and it won't solve your problem, understand or not? We have to respect everyone for what they are. If they believe that is the way, we wish them well. So everything is the same, if you know how to develop them, it will lead to the awakening, provided you are very truthful, sincere, and you have the faith. You will find out for yourself, there SO manv possibilities/approaches because are enlightenment and everyone is different, understand or not? As long as you don't have delusion, you are not driven by greed, you are not driven by wrong view, and you will find the way. Dhamma is ever waiting for the sincere cultivators of the way. They will develop the understanding and finally awaken. Okay, anymore questions? Is it clear or not?

'Clear?' - Good, because this sutta is not easy to understand. I spoke this sutta, nine years ago to another group in the year 2005. There was another sutta, I forgot the name already, also very interesting, and if I am not wrong it is the 'Vammīka Sutta'. It is about the analogy of the ant hill - that is a very difficult sutta. Not many people can understand that sutta; it was said, "the mind is like the ant hill - 'smoldering' by the night and 'blazing' by the day". The Buddha said the human mind is like that - when you are heedless with all the five mental hindrances, with all the defilements, with all the wrong views, he said, your mind is heedlessly blazing by the day like, none stop arising of thoughts or sankhārā.

So, all these are in the sutta and when you understand them, it is very meaningful, very beautiful, but this sutta is not easy to understand. If you just read this Sabbāsava sutta, and if I don't explain to you, chances are you cannot link to this part, then you will find it very difficult to comprehend what the Buddha is trying to tell you? One moment right attention, next moment restraint, next moment endure, next moment he talks about the proper usage, then next moment avoidance, next moment removal, then next moment cultivate seven factors of enlightenment, then you will say, why so '麻烦' (ma Fan) or troubleome and confusing one? And then you may just comment — 'Cultivate the seven factors of enlightenment is already enough', but it's not like that one, because certain wisdom need to be developed through contemplation, understand or not? Of course when you are able to have the seven factors of enlightenment developed, you will also have all these contemplative wisdom and understanding as well, because these are enlightenment factors that will bring about enlightenment.

The first two enlightenment factors of sati and dhamma investigation are most important, because without sati and dhamma investigation, you cannot do all these three turnings cultivation especially so the 2nd turning. Then of course without passadhi you cannot go into the four foundation of mindfulness cultivation. That's why viriva and pīti are very important enlightenment factors too, needed for you to develop passadhi, which is the 5th enlightenment factor; then with passadhi, Samādhi will allow you to see things as they are. Sati, passadhi and Samādhi, need to be understood. Passadhi is the silent mind. That is the reason why every time I tell you all to just silent your mind, while meditating, remember? The silent mind is passadhi, the meditative mind which is just stillness of mind, the tranquil, still, and unmoving mind. Then we develop equanimity borne of wisdom that is the real 7th enlightenment factor. The one in jhāna is a conditioned state. That fourth jhāna's equanimity is just a conditioned state; it is not the 7th enlightenment factor upekkhà. The conditioned state that held it in that state of upekkhà, - in this state the latent tendencies are all still suppressed because the energy field is very strong and it prevents the anusava from surfacing or coming out. That's why you must go into the daily mindfulness cultivation and you must release all concentration back to normal awareness, and develop the continuous mindfulness until the stage of upacāra Samādhi, then you can actually penetrate the Dhamma. Then you will understand, because with mindfulness it will allow you to understand a lot of things. Then Dhamma investigation will be like automatic, - you will know how to attend to the four noble truths, its three turnings, the five daily contemplations, then the three types of corresponding wisdom will keep on arising, like non-stop, then the seven factors of enlightenment will also keep on arising, understand or not? Then you will start to see very clearly the dependent origination, the four noble truths, the three evil roots, the essential Dhamma - all these will become very clear to you, then you will have a lot of joy, then you start to appreciate so much, because the Buddha is so wise. Okay, we got to end because it is already 10.20pm. Sādhu! Sādhu!
